Other Federal Corporate Tax Rates for 2022

(Prepared from information available as of June 10, 2022)

The rates shown in the table are in effect for a 12-month taxation year ended December 31, 2022. All rates that change must be pro-rated for taxation years that straddle the effective date, except as noted.

|                                                                     | Rate          | Corporations affected                                                                                                                                                                      | Description                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            | Special rules                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Income notearned in aprovince orterritory               | 25%           | All corporations                                                                                                                                                                           | Income tax for 2022 is calculated as follows:Basic federal rate $38\%$ Less: General rate reduction $-13\%$ General federal rate $\underline{25\%}$ Therefore, the federal rate is 25%, instead of 15%.                                                                                                                                | <ul> <li>Corporate income not earned in a province or territory is neither:</li> <li>eligible for the provincial abatement; nor</li> <li>subject to provincial or territorial tax (exceptions apply).</li> </ul>                                                                                                                   |
| Branch tax                                                          | 25%           | <ul> <li>Non-resident corporations, except:</li> <li>transportation, communications and iron-ore mining companies; and</li> <li>insurers (other than in special circumstances).</li> </ul> | Applies to after-tax profits that are not invested in qualifying property in Canada.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   | The 25% rate may be reduced by the relevant tax treaty (generally to the withholding tax rate on dividends, which is usually 5%, 10% or 15%). Some treaties prohibit the imposition of branch tax or provide that the tax is payable only on earnings exceeding a threshold.                                                       |
| Part III.1 Taxon ExcessEligibleDividendDesignations | 20% or30% | Canadian-residentcorporations                                                                                                                                                          | <ul> <li>Applies if:</li> <li>a CCPC has designated as eligible dividends during the year an amount that exceeds the corporation's general rate income pool (GRIP) at the end of the year; or</li> <li>a non-CCPC pays an eligible dividend when it has a positive balance in its low rate income pool (LRIP).</li> </ul>              | A corporation subject to Part III.1 tax at the 20% rate (i.e., the excess designation was inadvertent) can elect, with shareholder concurrence, to treat all or part of the excess designation as a separate non-eligible dividend, in which case Part III.1 tax will not apply to the amount that is the subject of the election. |
| RefundablePart IV tax                                           | 381/3%        | Private corporations and certain public corporations                                                                                                                                       | Payable on taxable dividends received from certainCanadian corporations and foreign affiliates.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    | Refundable to the corporation through the refundable dividend tax on hand (RDTOH) mechanism, at a rate of 38 <sup>1/3</sup> % of taxable dividends paid. <sup>1</sup>                                                                                                                                                              |
| RefundableInvestmentTax                                     | 10⅔%          | Canadian-ControlledPrivate Corporations(CCPCs)Substantive CCPCs <sup>2</sup>                                                                                                   | Increases the total federal rate that applies toinvestment income of a CCPC or substantiveCCPC <sup>2</sup> to 38.67%. Generally, 30 <sup>3</sup> / <sub>3</sub> % of thecorporation's aggregate investment income isadded to its non-eligible RDTOH (RDTOH fortaxation years beginning before 2019). <sup>1</sup> |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                    |
| Part VIFinancialInstitutionsCapital Tax                 | 1.25%         | BanksTrust and loancorporationsLife insurance companies                                                                                                                        | Applies if capital employed in Canada is over$1 billion. The threshold is shared by relatedcorporations.                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | Reduced by the corporation's federal incometax liability. Any unused federal income taxliability can be applied to reduce FinancialInstitutions Capital Tax for the previous threeyears and the next seven.                                                                                                        |
| CanadaRecoveryDividend <sup>3</sup>                         | 15%           | BanksLife insurance companiesFinancial institutionsrelated to the bank or lifeinsurance company                                                                            | Applies on taxable income for taxation yearsending in 2021 over $1 billion. The exemption isshared by related corporations. The tax liability isimposed in the 2022 taxation year, but is payable inequal amounts over five years (i.e., included in the2022 through 2026 federal tax filings).                   | A proration rule will apply to the taxable incomefor short taxation years ending in 2021.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |
| Additional taxon banks andlife insurers <sup>3</sup>        | 1.5%          |                                                                                                                                                                                            | For taxation years ending after April 7, 2022,applies on taxable income over $100 million. Theexemption is shared by related corporations.                                                                                                                                                                                    | For a taxation year that includes April 7, 2022,the additional tax will be pro-rated based on thenumber of days in the taxation year after April 7,2022.                                                                                                                                                               |

Notes:

- 1. For taxation years beginning after 2018:
  - eligible dividends paid by a CCPC, or, for taxation years ending after April 6, 2022, a substantive CCPC (as proposed in the 2022 federal budget), will produce a refund (at the 38<sup>1</sup>/<sub>3</sub>% rate) only to the extent of its "eligible RDTOH account," that will include (subject to transitional rules) Part IV tax paid on eligible dividends from non-connected corporations and on taxable dividends from connected corporations to the extent the dividend generated a refund from the connected corporation's eligible RDTOH account; and
  - the refundable portion of the corporation's other investment income, and the portion of Part IV tax on dividends from connected corporations that is not included in the eligible RDTOH account, is added to its "non-eligible RDTOH account," which is refunded to the extent of 38½% of non-eligible dividends paid by the CCPC (if this calculated amount exceeds the non-eligible RDTOH account, the excess can then recover any remaining eligible RDTOH account balance).
- 2. The 2022 federal budget proposes that, for taxation years ending generally after April 6, 2022, a private corporation resident in Canada that is not a CCPC and that is controlled, directly or indirectly in any manner whatever, by one or more Canadian resident individuals (or would, if each share of a corporation that is owned by a Canadian resident individual were owned by a particular individual, be controlled by the particular individual) is considered a "substantive CCPC" and is treated similarly to a CCPC for purposes of its investment income taxation.
- 3. The 2022 federal budget proposes these two new taxes on banks, life insurers and their related financial institutions.